
Nerve block site irritation

Posted by AJP - 2008/11/14 21:54

I am 10 days post op for AC joint surgery. Feel pretty good although I feel as though my neck has a bad case of razor burn around the site of the nerve block injection. The skin looks fine but anytime my cloths come in contact I feel irritation. My doc said it might be 'residual anesthetic' and gave me the usual it should go away in a week or two. Wondering if anyone else came across this.

I had more a deep bruising feel. Now at 5 weeks and it is very faint, however it is going away.
